A MODERATE MEASURE.

The Evening World's Children's Bill is not a radical but an exceedingly conservative measure.

It only asks that, before a child shall be irrevocably separated from its parents, there shall be no reasonable doubt of the rightfulness of such separation.

Messrs. Legislators, don't forget what that eminent jurist, Judge BARNETT, says:

"The amendment proposed by 'The Evening World' is a good one, so far as it goes. I SHOULD GO FURTHER."

"There should be a power vested in the Supreme Court to send proceedings back to the magistrate or to review them and set upon the review. And the Court should be empowered to decide the case, not upon the review alone, but upon any new facts and changed circumstances and conditions as well. And the Court should be empowered to recommit or discharge or make other disposition of children in such cases."

"WHEN MR. GERRY SAYS HIS

SOCIETY MUST ABANDON SUCH

CASES HE TALKS NONSENSE—

MERE NONSENSE. I AM HEARTILY

IN FAVOR OF ANY CHANGE IN THE

LAW WHICH WILL WORK A RE-

MOVAL OF THIS AUTOCRATIC

POWER FROM IRRESPONSIBLE

HANDS AND PLACE IT IN A RE-

SPONSIBLE TRIBUNAL," concluded

Judge Barrett.

A SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY.

The refusal of the railroads that reap the rich harvest incident to the approaching

Centennial celebration to make the time for which excursion tickets will be valid long enough to be of benefit to the merchants of this city is short-sighted and not at all just.

The business men of New York will make great sacrifices to insure the success of the Centennial, and they are certainly entitled to reap compensatory benefits.

Thousands of people will come to New York, induced by low passenger rates, desirous of buying goods here, and for the railroads to practically send them home before they have an opportunity to do business is an idiotic policy.

The merchants of New York are the best masters of New York railroads, and their very reasonable request in this matter should be promptly granted.

"THE MAINSTAY OF BASEBALL."

We congratulate our readers who have pushed the movement for the preservation of the Polo Grounds for this season to its present satisfactory state. With the action of the Aldermen and Legislature there is now almost no doubt that the Giants will play this year on their favorite grounds.

The Evening World seeks no undue credit for what has been accomplished, but the for-mable Polo Grounds Petition of our readers has proved to be what we said it would be,

"the mainstay of baseball in this town."

All other papers were croaking loudly over the prospective calamity to the National game, involved in the loss of the Polo

Grounds.

The Evening World alone went to work and voiced the public sentiment in the most emphatic fashion.

When EVENING WORLD readers undertake to do a thing it is pretty sure to be accom-

WORLDINGS.

There are altogether 1,365 foreign offices at the disposal of the State Department.
One of the finest collections of precious stones and jewels owned in Chicago is the property of the wife of a retired gambler.

Corporal Tanner, the new Commissioner of Pensions, entered the Army when only seventeen years old. He lost both of his legs at the second battle of Bull Run.

The average consumption of peanuts in the United States is 3,200,000 bushels a season.
All of these are raised in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

John A. Macdonald, the Canadian Gladstone, is noted for his weakness for his famous red necktie, and, except when in evening dress, rarely wears ties of any other color.

The collection of postage stamps made by the late Duchess of Galliera is said to be valued at $350,000. It is contained in 3,000 albums, and is the finest collection in the world.

Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, the historian and editor, is described as a quiet little lady, with a gentle voice and a sympathetic face. She lives at the Coleman House and is often seen in society.

Senator George, of Mississippi, is described as a typical specimen of the substantial and scholarly Southern gentleman. He takes great pride in his farm, and prefers life at his country home to existence in Washington.

William Shockey, of Waverly, O., is so enthusiastic about the fact that one side of his body perspires the other remains perfectly dry. One-half of the forehead, one side of the nose and the whole right half of the body exudes perspiration most copiously, while the other half remains absolutely free from moisture.

A DILETTANTE TASK.

(From the Athens (Ga.) Telegram.)

The New York World offers a prize for the best description of the American girl in 200 words. The editor of our great contemporary must be a pessimistic old bachelor if he imagines any one on earth can do justice to the American girl in 200 words.

Fashionable Intelligence.

(From Green Week.)

"No, I haven't seen Willie Krulisch, and I don't want to see him," replied Mr. Dinsmore, to a query of an EVENING WORLD reporter.

"The jury has decided and I am satisfied," he continued, "but I have had trouble enough over this thing. I have been abused just because I was so unfortunate as to have this thing said of my style. No, I would not like to give Willie his old place here again."

The jury was out three and one-half hours before it agreed on the verdict concerning Willie Krulisch. They all agreed that he bought the hatchet with which the life of Guenther Wechs-

ung was hacked away, but that was a reasonable doubt whether some other person might not have visited the store and committed the murder in Krulisch's absence. Hence the verdict.

The jurors were pledged to secrecy, but it was said that at first there were ten for acquittal, one for conviction and one not voting.

A WOULD-BE BITER BADLY BITTEN.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 10.—A young Bridgeport clerk, who has fought a number of battles with hard gloves, bought of a smooth-faced drummer a diamond ring, the price of which was $100.

The drummer was $10 down and the balance in installments.

The clerk told his friends that he intended to beat the drummer out of the balance. He was pleased to get a diamond ring for the simple outlay of $10.

His friends advised him to get some jeweler to appraise it. He did. Its value was $500.

The drummer has gone to work other fields.

A Good Shot.

(From the German, in Texas Bittings.)

At a German target festival the Grand Duke is requested to shoot at the target, to which he replies: "Gentlemen, I'm afraid I shoot I'll be caught at as a bad shot."

Friend—Don't let that bother you Royal Highness. The marker has got his instructions.
He knows what he has to do.

Not Long to Wait.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)

"I have only a moment to spare," said the visitor at the White House. "Is the President engaged?"

"Yes," answered the official, "a gentleman from Illinois has just gone in to see him."

"I will wait," said the visitor, taking a seat.

The Same Thing.

(From Railroad Topics.)

Passenger—Bring me some Eastport herrings in cotton-seed oil.

Waiter—Not on the bill, sah.

Passenger—Never mind the bill, bring me a box of sardines.

A Reason for It.

(From the Boston Herald.)

"The Electoral College seems to be falling into disfavor," remarked McKim.

"Very true," replied Cumis, "but what can you expect of a college with no baseball club?"

Across to Florida.

An Accomplished Tramp.

(From the New York Herald.)

First Tramp—Hello, pard, you look as if you'd been in clover.

Second Tramp—I was been six months in clover.

"I don't starve there."

"I don't. I can live in ninety-three languages."

This appears to be common during teaching are prepared by MONSIEUR'S TEACHING CORP. Price 25 cents.

Spring Medicine

The chief reason for the marvelous success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is Merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it is what has made it the greatest medicine in the world, and the countrymen and given to Hood's Sarsaparilla a sale greater than that of any other blood purifier.

When in the spring I felt all run down and debilitated, I found Hood's Sarsaparilla just the medicine to help me up. My skin, after such much physical exhaustion, found in its use new life and looking bright.

I'm an old fellow, but I have been sick with scurvy fever, it has been so marvelous, entirely removing the poison from her blood and restoring her longed health.

JOY AT THE KRULISCH HOME.

GREAT KISSING AND CRYING OVER THE WECHSUNG MURDER VERDICT.

Willie Takes His Acquittal and Release Very Coolly—He Goes Out for a Walk with His Uncle—Druggist Dinsmore Accepts the Verdict, but is Sulky—He Won't Take Krulisch Back.

It is a holiday in the household of Joseph Krulisch to-day, and there is great rejoicing there.

Willie Krulisch was acquitted of the murder of Guenther Wechsung by a jury of intelligent and fair-minded citizens last night at 10 o'clock, and the distressed one-year-old boy was discharged.

Joseph, Willie's handsome elder brother, clasped the boy in his arms and cried heartily over him when the verdict was announced.

Mary, his pale-faced and sickly sister, wept quietly on his shoulder, caressed his hair and kissed him.

Assistant District Attorney Jerome, who told the jury that his heart was with the boy, but his head told him that he was a guilty assassin, shed tears, too.

The crowd of spectators cheered lustily at the verdict. Everybody was in an ecstasy of excitement. Everybody gave Willie Krulisch. He was as cool as if he had no concern in the matter at all, he suffered some one to bundle his overcoat on to him and was taken away by his brother and sister.

A reporter found a smiling-faced young girl in charge of the three little ones of Joseph Krulisch at the improved dwelling association apartments, in East Seventy-second street, this morning. "Joseph and Willie and Mrs. Krulisch and Mary all went out after breakfast, and I don't know when they will return," she said, adding:

"Oh, yes, we were all glad of the verdict; but Willie didn't say much."

The reporter asked acquaintance with little May Krulisch, Willie's three-year-old niece, a black-haired, round and rosy-faced child, and asked her: "Were you glad to see Willie?"

"Oh, yes, sir; Willie is good to me," the babe prattled eagerly.

Even the baby in a crib seemed to partake of the general all-pervading joy and kicked its heels and said "a-goo a-goo" in a chirruping way.

"No, I haven't seen Willie Krulisch, and I don't want to see him," replied Mr. Dinsmore, to a query of an EVENING WORLD reporter.

"The jury has decided and I am satisfied," he
continued, "but I have had trouble enough
over this thing. I have been abused just because I was so unfortunate as to have this thing

said of my style. No, I would not like to give Willie his old place here again."

ung was hacked away, but that was a reason-

der in Krulisch's absence. Hence the verdict.
